

The procedure is never written down. Only its effects are.

Forty worlds before and after a reference bot acted, and no statement anywhere of what it did.

Effects are ordered and state-dependent, so no single rule can be read off a before/after pair in isolation.

Evidence is wide on purpose: 40 worked examples. The difficulty is the size of the hypothesis space, not scarcity.

Digging is the only reliable operation on this server, so the procedure is excavation and the bot never moves.